THE NEW YORK SUN

SATURDAY MORNING, TOV. 5, 1859. The Cotton Trade.

It is a well-known fact that American cotton superior and brings a higher pice in the English market than India cotton. The receipts from India last year in England, were much larger than any previous year, the quantity be-ing rearly equal to one-fourth of that received from the United States. The prices, however, of the Indian cotton did not much exceed an eighth of that from the States, which shows that the American article is worth about double of that from India. The demand, therefore, for American cotton abroad, can never be less than at present. Our home trade also, must be steadily on the increase. The North American, in noticing the movement of cotton northward and eastward, by inland routes says:

noticing the movement of cotton northward and eastward, by inland routes says:

Not only is carriage more cheaply secured, but an important stimulus to manufactures, in the very quarter where manufactures are most needed, is given. The south can do better than to send its vast cotten crop wholly to Liverpool, or wholly away by sea even to the manufacturing cities of the Atlantic coast. The consumption of sotten goods in the interior increases in geometrical ratio, almost, with every year of peaceful extension of population, and even when fierce was is waged by the administrators of the government upon the independence of its industry, we gain something by the dead embargo which falls upon business. In 1886 the interior was as effectedly cut off from the purchase of foreign cloths, from simple poverty, as our ancestors were under Javarasor's enbargo by computancy prohibition of huports. With a half blind perception of the truth of the former case, these interior Biates now struggle to develop resources at their owngloors, after a fashion, and perhaps many of them will, ultimasely come to see that if a thousand bales of Tennassee cotton could be simply carried up the Mississippi, instead of down that river, and could be woren by hands in Illinois and Iowa, not only would the cloth come more cheaply to the consumers than by way of Liverpool and Germany, but that some of the wasted grain of that fruitful region, would be taken by the workers.

During the year ording August 1st last, the Ciacinnati Cramber of Commerce report states that there was received at Chainnati 49.945 bales of cotton—the highest quantity in any previous year, being 20.000 bales in 1856. Of the first named quantity $8.760 bales were shipped up the Ohio river, and 35.460 bales were shipped any be obtained at 1859 12.660 bales were sent by canals and railways northward. A Visit of Ceremony.

A correspondent of the Journal of Commerce, writing from Northern China, gives an interesting account of a visit made by our Minister, Mr. Ward, to the Governor of the Province, from which we make the following extracts:— Friday, July 8th, at 6 o'clock in the morning, the time designated for the interview of Mr. Ward with the Governor General of the province of Chele, or Probele, as it is generally called by Europeana, Mr. Ward and his suite, accompanied by Commodore Tarrivall and his suite, accompanied by Commodore Tarrivall and his suite, accompanied by Commodore Interest in the small chartered steamer Toey-wan to the northern mouth of the river, where they entered near three junks which had been provided by the governor general for the reception of the American party. The party went on board the largest junk, which had been fitted up for the occasion with considerable labor and attempt at display. The junk was at least 150 feet in length, and on its quarter deck a platform had been raised, which was carpeted with red cioth, while over it was spread an awning or canopy of printed cottons, of foreign manufacture, but of Chinese patterns. The solver truth, near as this is to the Imperial city, of being about one hundred onlies distant) whose Emperor reigns ever a nation embracing four hundred and fourteen millions of people, and whose history goes hard up to the flood, and even beyond it, according to some of the old rec-people, and whose history goes hard up to the de-ofand tranditions, the whole show was not much, if any thing, above that of a booth at a common country lair.

At the jetty, carriages were found in readiness for Mr. Wann and his party; and such carriages. Radded would be chariote! It was tolerally patent that they were not such as those of olden time, in which warious found in the property of the top, would be chariote! It was tolerally patent that they made, The entrance was in front, the Ministr, Commodore, and all, being obliged to olimboratio and the such and the dimbing in bead foremose, they had to ecopy. However brave our Commodors had been in sterile, bearing upon him the bonoratio scars he received there, and however asgacious and "semper paratus" our Minister in whatever unexpected positions he may be placed, here was a position in which courage and diplomacy no moving—a 'scomplication' which the genius of a Meter ach could neither exact nor discussage.

Then crawing in upon all-fours, the Hon. Ambassadow with his port-folio full of decuments, and the President's autograph letter to his longerial Majorty His Nervos, 'tt deson of his versa.' and ourgalant Commove uniquified and indirous, if not designed for botchm's cast of a which was a charried in the typ of the paramit, though not untile the one in which Sussa.

fought, and only ally going on excursions, was wont to conceal itself from the gaze of mortals. The reception was deerigned to be most homorable to Mr.
Wann and the Commodore, and will make, doubtethe control of the control of the paration of such a which is more one of the such and rought, and only all geal right angles. To add to renembrances of these dark to movely if not the square of the control of the contransition of the cont

hat our Minister should then proceed to Feking, and there await the arrival of the Commissioners from Shanghae. To this our Minister assented, and subsequently all preparations were made f. f. Mr. Wann and his party by the Governor-General.

Bome notice of the Chinese military, as they appeared on this coassion, may not be out of place.

The troops through which the cavaleade passed stemed to be of two kinds. Those on the right of their line, which rested on the hall of conference, were dressed in a uniform, which from its uniformity in wear and tear, seemed to have but recently come into use, constaing of a short, blue cotton blouse, with happels and cuffs of red, while a sort of medallion in Chinese character was worked in white on the breast unpainted and apparently new. The heads were of iron, and quite rusty. The men were far from uniform in size, with smooth faces, indicative of occupation within doors rather than out, and having the appearance of a milita hastily collected from the neighboring villages and towns. The rest, composing two-thirds of the whole force, not exceeding 566 in number, were uncommonly stout, sum-burnt, and hardy-looking fellows. They were stern and steady in demeanor, having the airs of regular troops, though without pretensions to European drill. Four-fifths were armed with matchlock muskets and swords, and the remainder with hows. The archers seemed to have been selected for stature and strength. They were not in uniform, except that nearly all wore black leather boots, reaching down to the lower part of the calf of the leg, where it was much larger than the leg. They also were caps with broad black brims, which were turned up all around, so as to rise above and conceal the top of the casp, a circumstance which led some of the English sociders, who got close up to the forts when the attempt was made to storm them, to think that they were their black hair platted, and standing straight up from their heads. Perhaps those troops were Mongol Tartars.

The Galveston Neces of the 25th, has the following:—Judge John Daan returned hast Friday from a journey to the interior, and passed through Cypress City on Wednesday, and when there, he informs us, he took particular pains to ascertain the number of liabbitants in that place immediately after the first alarm of yallow lever and how many had left. The number at that time was 45; and et this number, 77 have since died; two of the remaining number were dying when he was there, and fifteen others were aids! It will be seen that this leaves but one well person in the place, except those who are there as nurses from Houston! Such mortality, we think, is extirely unprecedented.

A letter of the 23d from Indianols to a gentleman in Galve ton says: The news from Brownsville is of an inviting character. Most of the females are gone over to Matam ras for safety; others of them, who did not go over, are practising themselves in the use of firearms. The citizens have formed themselves into four camps, and take their turns in keeping a strict guard every night. They have an American, a Mexican, a French and a Spanish camp, and also have several pieces of artillery well charged with canister.

All this I have from a citizen of Brownsville, who came on the Arizona, and is now here. He also says there is no fever there for the want of subjects.

The Brazois Damocrat of the 18th says:—The cotton crop is turning out fine, and in some places a bale per acre has been gathered, and there is still good ploking; the work on the camil is progressing rapidly, and is now completed to Rattle Snake Point, about ten miles from the mouth of the river, to which place the work will be completed about the first of January next.

We learn from the Herald that trade was extremely briak at Lavaca; a mule train of some thirty or forty wagons arrived there on the 14th, from El Pano, with 35 000 pounds of copper from the old mines in Mexico.

From the Austin Gazette of the 22d, we extract the following:—Some time ago a citizen of Gonzales was killed in a difficity: the survivor was efterwards attacked by a friend of the deceased, and his brother who came to his assistance was killed. His murderer had been pursued, and Tromas Blakrary, of Bichmond, was lately arrested in that town as an accessory to the murder. Mr. Jasan Goose, of Whatton County, was in the room of Blakrary until four clock on the morning of the 7th inat. As Guoon oame cut of the house and was passing over the street, he was shot down by some unknown person. No discovery has yet been made. Thus the tragedy continues. Thomas Blakrary, the prisoner has exaped. He is said to be a desperake man, and was with NEL McCov at the time of killing young Baltyzell. Mr. Choon was a friend of Blakkely, and was a wealthy planter.

The North-Western Railrond Accident. The public excitement, says the Chicago Jour-nal of Wednesday, relative to the terrible casu-alty near Watertown, Wis., remains unabated. The affair has cast a gloom over a large part of the community, for the reason that it is an unusually mournful event. Large proparations had been made for the enjoyment and pleasure of our Northwestern friends. The excursion train left Osbkosh with a large crowd of passengors is high spirits, when in a moment the train is hurled from the track by an unforteen accident and the feativity is changed to mourning. The train consisted of thirteen cars, dedsely crowded with passengors, many in each car being obliged to stand up. They left Urknosh at a quarier before 7 yesterday morning. At half-past teep, between Jefferson and Watertown, about eight miles from the latter place, the casualty occurred. Mr. ELWARDS, who was sitting in the front car, next to the baggage car, when he suddenly heard a peculiar noise, and at once concluded either that the road was very rough, or that the engite was running off the track. Before he had time to think, the passenger car was running upon the ties, and the baggage car was running upon the ties, and the baggage car driven into it, saushing it to pieces. The floor of the passenger car was not hat of the baggage, while the roof of the baggage car was thrown into the former. Not a seat in the car but was smashed to pieces. The forward end of the car was let down into the mud and water, and many were injured by being caught and jammed between the beams. Mr. ELWARDS was injured somewhat by the falling of a stove upon one of his legs, but escaped by crawling through the window. A young man who was sitting upon the seat behind, talking with his sister, was killed, but his sister escaped. The tender was badly smashed up, but the onigne is comparatively uniqured. The sixth car was jammed into the fifth one, a new one, and broken upon one of his legs, but escaped by crawling through the window. A young man who was sitting upon the seat behind, talking with his sister, was killed, but his sister escaped. The tender was not been considered to the care of th

Suicide in Washington.

The Washington States gives full particulars of the suicide by shooting of Lewis Jonas, a clerk in the Land Office, on Thursday. He had been a very wild youth, and had oftentimes been admonished by his family and friends, and urged to pursue a different course. Thursday morning, on appearing with his family, his mother again took him aside, at d besocched him to be better in future, to leave those companions who detained him from his home, and to live more with his parent and sisters, at the same time throwing her arms around his neck and kissing him. He appeared to heed her for a moment, but withdrew from her arms, and then suddenly drawing a pistol, remarked, "I have lived long enough, I can't stand this," or, "Mother, see what I am going to do," and presenting the pis of to less forebead, fired. The ball entered about the centre of his forebead, and he sank almost lifeless into his agonized parent's arms. The alarm was given, and the househeld were soon present, together with the neighbors and passers-by. Physicians were immediately summoned, who probed the wound, but could not find the ball. The wound was large and frightful indeed, owing to the proximity of the pistol to his head. He remained insensible, writhing in the agonies of pair, until death relieved him of his sufferings. This is not the first attempt he has made to commit suicide, he having taken an over dese of laudanum a short time since, but which falled in its object. Yesterday he applied to a friend to be his second in a duel in which he expected to take a part, caused by a love affair. The decessed was very small for his age, and was the son of the late Gao. H. Jones, assistant secretary to the President to sign land patents. At the death of his father he took his piace in the Land Office, and was the sole support of his family.

The Port Royal Discoveries.

A gentleman lately from Jamacia, via Boston, gives some curious particulars in regard to the discoveries made in the herbor of Port Royal, in reference to the ancient city of that name. The discoveries were made by a party of divers, but it was not stated who they were, or what they went for. It turns out, ho wever, that they went for. It turns out, ho wever, that they were sent from this country, to explore the wreek of the steamer Osprey, a small vessel of 800 tons, that used to trade between New York and South America, calling at Kingston, Jamacia, a few years ago. The Osprey, in 1856, was on her return voyage, with a rich cargo of indiarubber, and other valuables, when she called, as usual, at Kingston. On the very morning of her intended departure, shortly after midnight, she caught fire, through one or two of her crew attempting to steal spirits, and burnt to the water's edge, and then sunk.

The divers have been very successful in getting out of the hull of the vessel a large quantity of India rubber, and other articles. While they were thus engaged, If M., steamer Valorous entered Port Royal, and, something being the matter with her bottom, the Yankee divers were employed to search. Laey did so, and discovered that a portion of the copper had been stripped off, which they made all right. Having done this, they were encouraged to explore the rules of the old city, now lying in several fathems of water, which they did, and reported that they found the street of the submerged city entire, as they had been laid out, with the ruins of buildings on each side. This is a matter worthy of antiquarian research—if such a term may be used, as it may, in the New World—and though the gold and silver there buried may never be discovered—and who shall say they will not?—it is really worthy exploring the wreck of a place that was once—insignificant as it now is—one of the most ancient cities in the New World. The divers were still exploring, when our informant left.

LART summer, a young German from New York City was visiting his father-in-law, Mr. HARDER, of Woodstock, and one day went out thunting. His attention was drawn to some pebbles in a brook, of metallic luster, and very heavy. He put two or three of them in his pocket, carried them to New York, had them examised by experts, and found they were baryta fragments of the purest kind. This is the heaviest of metallic earths, and when ground is the barytes of commerce, largely used in making white lead and other pigments. The specimens were far purer than any in metaltic, and the discovery was offered $25 at tun for as much as he could deliver. Acting promptly, the findst purchased from Mr. R. L. Pall 100 acres of the land where he made the discovery, supposing this included the whole deposit. Since, he has sold a half interest to parties in New York for $20,000, and the partners are about putting up a powerful engine to grind the material for market. It will command the highest price, for it is far purer and whiter than any hitherto supplied to white lead manufacturers.

A BRIGHT, intelligent little girl, aged eleven, named MARY ELIZABRYH FAGINS, was shot dead on the 25th ult., at Norristown, Fa. The Heradd says that the person who committed the deed is JOHN FAMOUS, about eight years of age, the son of WM. FAMOUS, a respectable neighbor. When asked why he committed such a terrible deed, he said to did not do it on purpose, that the dog had jumped on the gun, knecking it on the floor, and it was not his fault. The gun was found lying on a bed in an inner room, and, from the character of the ground, must have been held in a level or horizontal position when discharged." An examination was had before a magistrate, and the had threatened to shoot the girl before.
